(2) In accordance with the Department of English Regulations for Preparatory English Instruction, all the undergraduates newly admitted to the University and also the Associate Degree as well as State Conservatoire students who wish to receive preparatory English instruction, are first required to take the English Proficiency and Placement Examination. The students whose proficiency in English has been assessed in this examination as satisfactory, and also those students who are to be exempted from preparatory English instruction, begin their studies in the programmes they have registered for, while those students whose proficiency in English is not satisfactory are subject to the procedures specified in the same Regulations.

Periods of Study

Article 13. (1) Instruction is offered on a semester basis. One academic year has two semesters, namely Autumn and Spring, and each semester consists of minimum 14 weeks of 70 weekdays, excluding examinations days.

(2) Where needed, summer school courses may be offered in accordance with the rules and regulations stipulated by the Senate and subject to the approval of the Higher Education Council. The procedures concerning summer school instruction are specified in a separate set of regulations. The fees for summer school instruction shall be determined by the Board of Trustees.

(3) The normal period of study is four years (eight semesters) at the faculties, the schools and the State Conservatoire, five years (ten semesters) in the programmes for secondary education branch teacher training, and two years (four semesters) at the vocational schools. The period of study spent in the Preparatory English programme is not included in these periods of study.

(4) Students are required, whether they have registered or not, to complete the normal two-year period of study within four years, the normal four-year period of study within seven years, and the normal five-year period of study within nine years, excluding the period granted for leave of absence. In case they have failed to complete their study programme, for which they have registered, within its maximum period, they continue their studies as extended students.

Study Programmes and Courses

Article 14. (1) Proposals concerning the courses to be included in a study programme, the semesters in which they are to be offered, the number of hours per week for the teaching of each course, the number of hours for the theoretical and applied teaching of each course, the ECTS credits for each course, what courses are compulsory and what courses are elective, and their prerequisites if any, shall be made by the head of the respective department or programme to the unit with which the department or programme is affiliated. The proposals approved by the board of the respective unit shall go into effect subject to the Senate’s final approval. The same procedure shall be followed for the changes to be made in the study programme.

(2) Where needed, some courses may, upon the proposal of the department or programme head and subject to the approval of the unit board, be offered in both semesters.

(3) Of the courses included in a study programme, the ones to be offered for summer school instruction are specified, prior to the summer school term, upon the proposal of the department or programme head and subject to the resolution of the unit board. A student may, if approved by his adviser, take courses under 30 ECTS credits.

Course Registration and Course Adds-and-Drops

Article 16. (1) Students must, with the help of their advisers, complete their course enrolment procedures at the beginning of each semester, between the dates indicated in the academic calendar. Those students who fail to do their course enrolments within the specified dates may complete their course enrolments by the end of the add-drop period, provided that their excuses are accepted by the Office of the Rector. In case this period is exceeded, the student cannot take any course for the semester.

(2) Students cannot enrol on the courses that conflict, even partially, with the courses in their weekly schedule, on which they have already enrolled.

(3) In choosing the courses on which they wish to enrol, students must primarily take the courses previously failed or deferred. However, in the case of those students who have repeat courses or whose period of study will lengthen owing to a course conflict, this rule may not apply for the courses which have no unfulfilled prerequisites and are considered eligible by the student adviser and approved by the department or programme head.

(4) For a prerequisite course to be taken, the course or courses, with which it is connected, must already have been taken, and the passing grades must not be the grades “F1” or “F2”.

(5) Students may, upon the approval of their adviser and within the period indicated in the academic calendar, drop one or more courses on which they have previously enrolled, or add new courses to the courses already enrolled on. However, all these procedures and the results thereof must not conflict with the provisions made in this Article and Article 15.

(6) Subject to the adviser’s proposal and the department or programme head’s approval, students may take various other courses offered by the University as electives so long as these courses do not exceed 10% of the ECTS credits of the elective courses included in their own programmes.

Attendance

Article 17. It is compulsory for students to attend lectures, laboratory work, work practice and other study activities considered appropriate by instructors. Those students whose inattendance in a course exceeds the specified limit shall be considered unsuccessful in the course. The rules and regulations concerning inattendance limits and students’ attendance shall be determined by the Senate upon the proposals made by the administrative committees of the respective units.

Examinations and Assessment

Article 18. (1) Minimum one midterm examination during the semester and one final examination at the end of the semester shall be given each semester. The instructor may, with or without previous notification, also give short written examinations (quizzes); homeworks, projects, laboratory and similar other work may be assessed as midterm examinations. Examinations may be conducted as written, oral, both written and oral, and/or applied.

(2) In the assessment of a student’s semester achievement, the results of all the examinations, intra-semester work, attendance and in-class participation shall be taken into consideration. The weightings shall be determined by the instructor and reported to the department/programme head as well as the students within the first two weeks following the beginning of instruction.

(3) All examination results shall be announced at the latest within the 10 weekdays following the examinations. Instructors must, if requested by the students, show the examination papers to the students.

(4) Students who have missed an examination due to an illness which has been medically certified in accordance with the procedure specified in these Statutes or due to an excuse considered to be valid by the respective instructor and the department/programme head may, upon request, be given a make-up examination. Make-up examinations can be requested solely for midterm and final examinations. The provisions for the conduct of make-up examinations shall be determined by the administrative committee of the respective unit.

(5) Students who object to their examination results shall first try to resolve their objections with the respective instructor by jointly checking the examination papers. The students who sustain their objections to the examination results or wish to object to the course achievement grade, which they have been given in the examination, must submit their objections in writing to the department or programme head within the three weekdays following the announcement of the examination results or achievement grades. Objections shall be scrutinized by a committee of three faculty members, who shall be commissioned by the respective department or programme head, and one of whom must be the respective instructor, and shall be concluded within the three weekdays following the submission in writing of the objection. The committee shall submit its conclusions to the department or programme head by filling up a printed form. In case there has been an error in grading, the respective instructor shall make the necessary correction by filling up a form. The forms filled up as such shall become final upon the approval of the respective administrative committee concerned.

(6) Students who cheat, attempt to cheat or help others to cheat in examinations shall be graded zero. Moreover, disciplinary action shall be taken against them.

A student who has been given the grade “E”, must, after having completed the lacking work practice if there be any, take the make-up examination within the ten days following the announcement of the grades. The decision for the extension of this period shall be made by the administrative committee of the respective unit. The “E” grades that have not been extended by the unit administrative committee or replaced by other grades within a fortnight shall turn automatically into “F1” grades.

(3) Students who have pursued their two-semester courses successfully during the first semester shall be given the grade “P”.

(4) The grade “S” shall be given for the work practice done or any applied course taken outside the semester academic calendar. Upon the resolution of the unit administrative committee and by the end at the latest of the add-drop period of the ensuing academic year, this grade must be replaced by one of the usual achievement grades.

Article 20. (1) The courses taken by a student during the last five years, prior to his registration at the University, at another institution of higher education and assessed by the student’s adviser as equivalent to the courses which the student has passed minimum with the “C” grade shall be transferred, upon the proposal of the department/programme head and the resolution of the respective unit’s administrative committee, to the programme for which the student has registered. (2) The credits, which are to be transferred and belong to the courses previously taken at another institution of higher education, must have been entered into the student’s transcript with the original code number, title and ECTS credits. (3) GPA is the score obtained when the total of the ECTSes, which have been earned from all the courses taken since the student’s admission to the programme, is divided by the total of the ECTS credits earned from all the courses on which the student has enrolled.

(4) In the courses (including summer school courses), which are repeated or taken for grade increase, only the latest grade shall be taken into consideration.

(5) In calculating the grade average, the result shall be moved two digits forward after the comma.

Student Academic Standing

Article 22. (1) The students whose SGA and GPA is minimum 2.00 and who have no repeat courses shall be considered successful.

(2) The students whose GPA, except for the work practice and deferred courses, is less than 1.80 at the end of each registered semester, excluding the first semester, are required to increase their GPA minimum to 1.80 in order to be able to enrol on a course not taken previously. The students with less than 1.80 GPA have to repeat the courses previously taken until their GPA has risen to 1.80. This rule does not apply to extended students. The semesters in which students repeat courses shall be counted within their study period.

(3) The students whose SGA and GPA are between 3.00 and 3.49 shall be considered honour students, and the students whose SGA and GPA are between 3.50 and 4.00 shall be considered high honour students.

Course Repeat

Article 23. The grades “F1” and “F2” indicate that the student has failed in a course. The grade “F1” shall be given to the student who has attended but failed in a course. The grade “F2” shall be given to the student who has failed in a course despite his attendance. The student who has failed in a course due to inattandence cannot take the semester final examination. The student with “F1” or “F2” must repeat the course in the first place in the semester in which it shall be offered again. If the course, which is to be repeated, is an elective course or has been removed from the programme, then the student shall be given its equivalent determined by the administrative committee of the respective unit. The student who wishes to increase his GPA may, within the limits specified in Article 15, take the courses, which he has already taken, in addition to the courses he is required to take for the semester for which he has registered.
